Cloze Test Quiz 28

Directions: Fill in the blanks with appropriate words to make the passage meaningful.

Mankind has seen rapid transformation in the last 150 years because of the mass manufacturing techniques (1) in western nations and later taken to new levels of efficiency by Japan. Mass production and production for the masses became the bases of new business strategies. Large scale consumption by all with the social benefit of removing poverty became the dominant economic strategy. The advent of electricity and its large-scale application to lighting, heating and operating machines added a fresh dimension to manufacturing. By the 1950s came (2) in electronics and transistor devices to be followed by innovations in microelectronics, computers and various forms of sensors all of which precisely altered the manufacturing scene. It is now no longer necessary to make prototypes in a factory or a laboratory to study a new product. Many new products can be (3) on computers and their behavior simulated on them. By choosing an optimum design through such simulations, computer programmes can directly visualise the manufacturing processes. These processes are generally called Computer Aided Design (CAD) and Computer Assisted Manufacturing (CAM). These capabilities are leading to newer forms of (4) by customers. Each customer can be offered several special options. Customised product design or flexible manufacturing are other popular techniques currently in (5) in many developed countries.
