Explanations :

1. All the fragments are correct and do not contain any errors.
Hence, option E is correct.
2. Fragment A: The government classifies village as electrified if Multiple villages are being talked about here.
Correct: The government classifies villages as electrified if Fragment B: public buildings have electric connections and
Electric is an adjective while we need a noun here.
Correct: public buildings have electricity connections and
Fragment C: merely 10% or most of the village residences
Here, the superlative degree is incorrectly used.
Correct: merely 10% or more of the village residences
Fragment D: have connections, withheld concerns of supply
We need the present participle of withhold here-
Correct: have connections, withholding concerns of supply
All the fragments are incorrect.
Hence, option E is correct.
3. Fragment A: Even for the recruitment systems
For does not make sense as it is the recruitment systems that would ensure positions are filled. As would be used.
Correct: Even as the recruitment systems
Fragment C: are filled in the CBI, their
There is a determiner while we need there- an adverb.
Correct: are filled in the CBI, there
Fragment D: our other agencies that
The correct word is are instead of our.
Correct: are other agencies that
Fragment B is correct.
Hence, option C is correct.

4. Fragment B: so for 2013, the Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO)

The statement tries to convey that from/since 2013 onwards, the SFIO has emerged as a leading fraud investigation agency. For makes it sound as if it was the leading agency just for 2013 which is incorrect.

Correct: so since 2013, the Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO)

Fragment C: has emerged as Indias premier

The apostrophe is missing.

Correct: has emerged as India's premier

Fragment D: corporate fraud investigation agencies,

Only one agency- SFIO- is being talked about here.

Correct: corporate fraud investigation agency,

Fragment A is correct.

Hence, option A is correct.

5. Fragment A: If the opposition want to base its.

The error is with respect to subject-verb disagreement.

Correct: If the opposition wants to base its

Fragment B: campaign in the mismanagement of

The opposition is using the mismanagement as a basis on which to run its campaign.

Correct: campaign on the mismanagement of

Fragment C: the economy and agriculture with

The mismanagement is being done by the governments.

Correct: the economy and agriculture by

Fragment D is correct.

Hence, option B is correct.

6. Fragment D, in bold, is already correct.

Fragment B: index series, it has.

We need the third person present form of be here which is is.

Correct: index series, it is

Fragment C: found that an dynamics

The use of article an indicates a vowel but is not so. The is the correct article here.

Correct: found that the dynamics

Fragment E: process have changed substantive

Here, substantive is an adjective while we need an adverb.

Correct: process have changed substantially

Fragment A is correct.

Hence, option A is correct.

7. All the fragments of the statement are correct and there is no error.

Hence, option E is correct.

8. Fragment E, in bold, is already correct.

Fragment A: The de-stress in rural areas was further

Destress means to relax after a period of work or tension and should be replaced by distress means extreme anxiety, sorrow, or pain.

Correct: The distress in rural areas was further

Fragment C: particularly construction, who has

The word who is not used for inanimate objects and is incorrect here. It should be replaced by which.

Correct: particularly construction, which has

Fragment D: been a source of alternatively employment

Here, we need an adjective instead of an adverb.

Correct: been a source of alternative employment

Fragment B is correct.

Hence, option B is correct.

9. Fragment C, in bold, is already correct.

Fragment A: In the past, the government being

Here, the event talked about has already occurred (use of the word past) and instead of being, was should be used.

Correct: In the past, the government was

Fragment B: retaining to allocate too much

The word retaining does not make sense in the statement. Here, the government was not keen on spending a lot on bank recapitalization. The correct word to convey this would be reluctant.

Correct: reluctant to allocate too much

Fragment E: sector adversely on it's fiscal consolidation efforts.

Here, the error is with respect to incorrect use of apostrophe. It's means it is which is absurd here and should be replaced by its.

Correct: adversely on its fiscal consolidation efforts

Fragment D is correct.

Hence, option C is correct.

10. Fragment A, in bold, is already correct.

Fragment C: growth, the bleat employment scene

Bleat means the noise made by a goat/sheep and is absurd here. The correct word would be bleak which means something that looks discouraging/ unfavorable.

Correct: growth, the bleak employment scene

Fragment D: and the increasing in jobs in the informal

The fragment talks about an increase in informal jobs. The correct word here is increase and not increasing.

Correct: and the increase in jobs in the informal

Fragment E: sector where there are no union representation.

Here, the union is being spoken about as a singular entity and use of are is erroneous.

Correct: sector where there is no union representation.

Fragment B is correct.

Hence, option A is correct.
