D	D	C	B	C	C	C	C	B	C	D	C	C	B	D	D	D	C	B	D	C	D	D	B	C

Explanation:

1. Here the two statements have been used in the sense that the school has the best infrastructure for conducting research but the students are not at all interested in taking advantage of that. Only however can be used to connect these two sentences since the first one is about some facility whereas the next is about how that is going in vain. All the other connectors are used to connect sentences that have cause and effect relationship between them. So, all of them can be eliminated.

The connected sentence would be: The school has the best research infrastructure in the town, however, the students are not at all interested in pursuing education.

This makes Option D the correct choice among the given options.

2. If we take into account the context of the two given statements, it is regarding the fact that I did not want to listen to the matter and started reading the book. In contrast is not correct because it is used to indicate something that is opposite to the other and it is certainly not fit in the given context. On the other hand and however can also be eliminated since they cannot connect these two given statements. Only instead can be used in order to connect the two sentences without changing the meaning.

The connected statement would be: I didn't want to get into the depth of the matter at any cost, instead, I took the book from the shelf and started reading with great attention.

This makes Option A the correct choice among the given options.

3. The two statements are regarding the context that the person does not think that there is no problem with his technique to play the short ball but he will definitely talk about it with him after the match. Among the given connectors, both because and hence are mainly used for statements that have cause and effect relationship whereas by comparison is used in order to indicate any kind of comparison. Only nonetheless can connect these two statements since it implies in spite of that and that is why it can be used to connect these two statements without changing the meaning.

The connected sentence would be: I am of the opinion that there is no problem with his technique to play the short ball, nonetheless, I will talk to him about this the first thing after the match today.

This makes Option A the correct choice among the given options.

4. Here the given two statements carry a cause and effect relationship. The reason the farmers are asking for compensation is because of the late onset of monsoon in the country. That is the main reason the farmers have lost their revenue. Among the given connectors, we can see that nevertheless can be used to indicate that in spite of something we have done something else whereas though and yet are also not correct here. There is only one connector that can be used here i.e. owing to.

The connected sentence would be: Owing to the late monsoon and rains this year, the farmers are demanding compensation from the government for their revenue loss.

This makes Option C the correct choice among the given options.

5. According to the given context we can see that the players in the team played very well but at the end of the day they lost of the match.
