Correct answers

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
D	B	C	E	C	B	B	A	E	C

Explanations:

(1). The original sentence is incorrect.

Reason: We can infer that parliamentary rules and procedures which govern how business is conducted do not allow sloganeering inside the chamber. Therefore, 'governing' should be used instead of 'government' in the given context of the sentence.

Moreover, here 'conduct' means 'carrying out', i.e. how business should be carried out. Therefore, instead of the preposition 'in', 'of' should be used here so as to make the sentence correct.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

Parliamentary rules and procedures governing conduct of business don't allow sloganeering in any form inside the chamber.

Option D is hence the correct answer.

(2). The original sentence is incorrect.

Reason: There are two errors in the bold part.

Firstly, the phrasal verb 'stand by' which means 'adhere to or abide by (something promised, stated, or decided)' has been written incorrectly. Therefore, 'stood up' must be replaced by 'stood by' in order to make the sentence correct.

Secondly, usage of plural case of possessive pronoun 'their' is also erroneous. Here the writer refers to the weather office which is a single institution. Therefore, 'their' should be replaced by 'its' to make it a grammatically correct sentence.

Among the choices available, option B replaces the bold part most appropriately.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

The weather office has stood by its initial forecast of monsoon rainfall being 96% of average in the June-September season.

Option B is hence the correct answer.

(3). The original sentence is erroneous.

Reason: The correct idiomatic expression is 'kick the can down the road' and not 'kickbox the cans over the road'.

kick the can down the road (Idiom):

Meaning: Put off confronting a difficult issue or making an important decision, typically on a continuing basis.

E.g.: I appreciate that he doesn't want to raise taxes, but sooner or later you have to stop kicking the can down the road.

Hence 'kick the can down the road' should be used in place of 'kickbox the cans over the road' to make the sentence grammatically correct.

Among the given choices, only option C replaces the given bold part most appropriately.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

RBI regulations must take away incentives of banks to kick the can down the road and "extend and pretend".

Option C is hence the correct answer.

(4). The original sentence is absolutely correct and hence the bold part needs no replacement.

Option E is hence the correct answer.

(5). The original sentence is erroneous.

Reason: The possessive pronoun 'its' has been used in correctly in this sentence and should be replaced by "it's" which is an abbreviation of 'It is'. Moreover, the sentence tells us which actions are important and to be done. Hence 'to acknowledge' should be used in place of 'in acknowledging' to make the sentence grammatically correct.

Among the given choices, only option C replaces the given bold part most appropriately.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

It's really important to acknowledge the other person's good nature and to identify common ground and shared values.

Option C is hence the correct answer.

(6). The original sentence is erroneous.

Reason: Usage of the phrasal verb 'take up' which means 'to start doing something regularly as a habit, job, or interest ' is inappropriate in this sentence.

'Take for' which means 'believe mistakenly' would be suitable in this context. The phrase 'take for granted' means 'fail to properly appreciate someone or something, especially as a result of overfamiliarity'.

E.g.: The boss takes us for granted, but if we weren't here, this whole company would collapse.

Hence 'take for' should be used in place of 'take up' to make the sentence grammatically and contextually correct.

Among the given choices, only option B replaces the given bold part most appropriately.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

We need to find ways to survive the grief and the loss of so many things we currently take for granted.

Option B is hence the correct answer.

(7). The original sentence is incorrect.

Reason: There are two errors in the bold part.

Firstly, the term 'tension trade' is absurd. Here, the writer makes a reference to trade war. A trade war happens when one country retaliates against another by raising import tariffs or placing other restrictions on the opposing country's imports. Therefore, 'tension trade' must be replaced by 'trade tension' in order to make the sentence correct.

Secondly, the author means to convey that trade tension has heightened. Therefore, "heightened due to" should be replaced by "due to heightened" to make it a grammatically correct sentence.

Among the choices available, option B replaces the bold part most appropriately.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

Due to heightened trade tension, which has been putting pressure on global growth, gold has been witnessing safe haven buying.

Option B is hence the correct answer.

(8). The original sentence is erroneous.

Reason: The word 'affect' means 'have an effect on' which is unsuitable in this sentence. The correct word to be used here is 'effect' which means 'cause (something) to happen'.

Moreover, the word 'meaningful', which means 'serious, important, or worthwhile', should be used in place of 'mean' so as to make the sentence contextually correct.

Among the given choices, only option A replaces the given bold part most appropriately.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

The terms of bank chairpersons must be elongated in order to effect meaningful changes and to hold them accountable.

Option A is hence the correct answer.

(9). The original sentence is absolutely correct and hence the bold part needs no replacement.

Option E is hence the correct answer.

(10). The original sentence is erroneous.

Reason: The word 'communication' means 'the imparting or exchanging of information by speaking, writing, or using some other medium' whereas the word 'communications'. When used in the plural form, the word 'communications' also refers to 'the technology employed in transmitting messages'. Here the latter is being referred to. Hence 'communications' should be used in place of 'communication' to make the sentence grammatically correct.

Among the given choices, only option C replaces the given bold part most appropriately.

The sentence after replacement becomes:

On 5G, Modi told Trump that it was a new area in communications that provided an opportunity for collaboration between India and the US.

Option C is hence the correct answer.
